Fund Manager Commentary

March saw global equity markets complete a poor first quarter driven by an escalation in trading tariffs and a deteriorating geopolitical rhetoric. In the US, political headlines continue to dominate sentiment, a trend that can be expected to persist as we approach mid-term elections in November. While concerns on the pace of tightening have subsided, the underlying tone of monetary policy remains broadly hawkish and overall economic data continues to support the case for stimulus removal. The global equity benchmark fell 3.85%, with the fund falling 2.65% over the month. Overall, global markets fell around 3.9% in Sterling terms, while the fund fell just 2.65%, outperforming by c.1.2%, driven by strong stock selection in most regions. Strong stock performance came from Smurfit Kappa which was approached by US peer International Paper with a cash and stock bid. In terms of fund activity, given the realisation of our investment thesis had led to excessive valuation, we exited our long-held position in Technopro, the Japanese engineering collective. In the US, we established a new holding in Aptiv, a key player in the development of electrical architecture within transportation, capturing similar long-term sustainable themes as NXP, which was sold in February.
